

INSPIRATION HOUSE

RETREATSSM

RENEWAL FOR CHANGE ARTISTS

PRESENTED BY
Peter J. Harris

“Inspiration House believes that no social change can be sustained unless the social change workers are sustained.”

COMMUNE WITH THE ARTS

At Inspiration House RetreatsSM men and woman commune with art, dance, theater, video arts, and creative writing to rediscover that creativity and imagination are indispensable tools for constructive personal and social change.

Photo by Adenike A. Harris

PETER J. HARRIS

ACTIVATE TOMORROW

Staff working for equitable community service, neighborhood development, and social change can burn out emotionally, become territorial, begin to mistrust collaboration and sink into helplessness, because of the inherently slow pace of reaching their goals. Staff become less effective in advancing their social justice agendas, maintaining organizational stability, and developing a broader base of partners and constituencies.

There are few tools and systematic training approaches addressing both structural/institutional causes of conflict/oppression and the importance of engaging and healing the personal pain, grief, and frustrations that organizers and activists often carry after operating for years within crises.

EMBRACE HEALING STILLNESS

Venues vary, but each retreat is a soulful offering, allowing for participants to uniquely experience healing stillness; wondering and wandering; inspiring art; and virtuoso performances.

CONTACT US

323-385-3536
peter@inspirationcrib.com

Rekindle Joy with PJH

American Book Award-winning writer and cultural worker, PJH has worked for close to 40 years as a poet, essayist, journalist, editor, publisher, broadcaster, educator, and workshop leader who creates experiences that morph into unique ceremonies reflecting the humane and just society we imagine and work to create. www.blackmanofhappiness.com.